The IJIS Institute, a nonprofit organization that focuses on mission-critical information sharing for justice, public safety, and homeland security, announces the presentation of its Member Appreciation Award to Analysts International Corporation \(AIC\) on January 7, 2010. The award was presented by Paul Wormeli, executive director of the IJIS Institute, during the Institute's Winter 2010 Industry Briefing, held in Washington, DC.

The IJIS Institute Member Appreciation Award is presented two times a year by the IJIS Institute to the member company that has demonstrated outstanding contributions to the IJIS Institute during the previous year. Candidates for the award are nominated by IJIS Institute leadership, staff, or committee chairs, and represent significant contributions to information sharing through their work at the IJIS Institute.

Analysts International Corporation has been a member of the IJIS Institute since 2003. AIC ranked among the top five percent of all member organizations in number of overall Institute-related projects with which they were involved, including: serving on technical assistance engagements, acting as trainers for educational events, representation at events, and participation in committees. AIC is represented on four key IJIS Institute Advisory Committees and represents the Institute on the Global Infrastructure/Standards Working Group Services Task Team, the Global Outreach Working Group, and the National Information Exchange

Model \(NIEM\) Communications and Outreach Committee.

Kirke Curtis, chair of the IJIS Institute's Outreach and Membership Committee, noted that, "The participation and active support of our members is critical to the success of the IJIS Institute. Analysts International Corporation has really distinguished themselves in this regard and I'm delighted to see them get this recognition."
